All objections and rejections previously set forth are withdrawn.

Allowable Subject Matter

2. Claims 1-27 are allowed.
3. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance

Claims 1, 10, 19, 20, 21

The closest prior art of Weber et al (7216092) and Roztocil et al (6995860) teach processes that allow a user, via a desktop application, to customize a printable product. The tools allow the user to configure and manipulate the document. Both teach printing and configuring the document in accordance with an online printers manufacturing setup. Neither of the references either alone or in combination suggest the feature of remotely connecting a user to a printing services site and allowing the user and an operator at the remote site to substantially configure the document at the same time while allowing the user and operator to receive and inquire for more information from the user while they are looking at the document. The cited prior art clearly demonstrates several mechanisms for allowing the user to customize the product on the desktop and then submitting the finished product to an automated print facility that does not require the input of an operator on the other end. The cited prior art also demonstrates several mechanisms that allow for remote sharing of applications and for providing collaboration amongst users while performing a task such as compiling/annotating a document or design sessions. Moreover, the prior art does not suggest or teach where one or more alert conditions are present notifying the user and operator of the condition so that a change can be made before printing. Further, none of the prior art suggest allowing the user to connect to a remote services printing site and then allowing the user and operator to simultaneously view and collaborate while designing a product to be printed, as recited in the claims and argued by applicant.

Art Unit: 2179

Claims 2-9, 11-18, and 22-27:

These claims are dependent upon Claims 1, 10, 19, 20, 21 and are thus allowable.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Steven B. Theriault whose telephone number is (571) 272-5867. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F 7:30 - 4:00 PM.
